DETAILED ACTION

Priority

1. Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Information Disclosure Statement

2. Information Disclosure Statement submitted 9/8/03 has been considered by the examiner.

Drawings

3. Drawings filed 9/8/03 have been approved by the examiner.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

4. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

The USPTO "Interim Guidelines for Examination of Patent Applications for Patent Subject Matter Eligibility" (Official Gazette notice of 22 November 2005), Annex IV, reads as follows:

Descriptive material can be characterized as either "functional descriptive material" or "nonfunctional descriptive material." In this context, "functional descriptive material" consists of data structures and computer programs which impart functionality when employed as a computer component. (The definition of "data structure" is "a physical or logical relationship among data elements, designed to support specific data manipulation functions." The New IEEE Standard Dictionary of Electrical and Electronics Terms 308 (5th ed. 1993).) "Nonfunctional descriptive material" includes but is not limited to music, literary works and a compilation or mere arrangement of data.

When functional descriptive material is recorded on some computer-readable medium it becomes structurally and functionally interrelated to the medium and will be statutory in most cases since use of technology permits the function of the descriptive material to be realized. Compare In re Lowry, 32 F.3d 1579, 1583-84, 32 USPQ2d 1031, 1035 (Fed. Cir. 1994) (claim to data structure stored on a computer readable medium that increases computer efficiency held statutory) and Warmerdam, 33 F.3d at 1360-61, 31 USPQ2d at 1759 (claim to computer having a specific data structure stored in memory held statutory product-by-process claim) with Warmerdam, 33 F.3d at 1361, 31 USPQ2d at 1760 (claim to a data structure per se held nonstatutory).

In contrast, a claimed computer-readable medium encoded with a computer program is a computer element which defines structural and functional interrelationships between the computer program and the rest of the computer which permit the computer program's functionality to be realized, and is thus statutory. See Lowry, 32 F.3d at 1583-84, 32 USPQ2d at 1035.

Claim 9 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter as follows. Claim 9 defines a computer program embodying functional descriptive material. However, the claim does not define a computer-readable medium or memory and is thus non-statutory for that reason (i.e., "When functional descriptive material is recorded on some computer-readable medium it becomes structurally and functionally interrelated to the medium and will be statutory in most cases since use of technology permits the function of the descriptive material to be realized" – Guidelines Annex IV). That is, the scope of the presently claimed a computer program can range from paper on which the program is written, to a program simply contemplated and memorized by a person. The examiner suggests amending the claim to embody the program on "computer-readable medium" or equivalent in order to make the claim statutory. Any amendment to the claim should be commensurate with its corresponding disclosure.

Allowable Subject Matter

5. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter:

Claims 1-8 are allowed.

The prior Art on record fails to teach or suggest, singly or in combination, calculating a moved distance and tilt of the slice data that has been detected as being of significance and calculating positional coordinates of a reconstructed image area to which the slice data is to be projected, based on the moved distance and tilt of the slice data which has been calculated by the moved distance/tilt calculating means, and generating reconstructed image data as recited in claims 1 and 8.

Other prior art cited

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Kimura (US Pub. No. 2002/0012057 A1) discloses MOS sensor and drive method thereof.

Bailey (US 6,175,923 B1) discloses a secure system using images of only part of a body as the key where the part has continuously-changing features.

Fishbone et al. (US 5,467,403) disclose a portable fingerprint scanning apparatus for identification and verification.

Kruse (US 7,003,142 B1) discloses a method and arrangement for registering and verifying fingerprint information.

Scott et al. (US 6,687,391 B1) disclose adjustable, rotatable finger guide in a tenprint scanner with movable prism platen.

Bailey (US 6,175,923 B1) discloses a secure system using images of only
